Dear Oracle Customer:

Oracle Corporation, through one of its subsidiary companies, acquired Textura and its subsidiaries in 2016. As a result of the acquisition, sales and/or use tax, if applicable, must be charged on transactions to jurisdictions where Oracle has a collection and remittance obligation. We recently completed our review of all Textura's Colorado-related transactions, and identified customers located in Colorado who are now under contract with Oracle and are now subject to tax in Colorado. Tax will be charged against any Colorado transaction beginning February 1, 2019, unless customers can provide proof of tax exemption.

To the extent you are exempt from sales and/or use taxes on your purchases, please provide Oracle with a current valid resale/exemption certificate for the state and/or local jurisdiction into which your company's purchases are shipped. Oracle will review accordingly. Once accepted, Oracle will apply the applicable tax exemption against the applicable transaction(s).

Should you have a current valid resale/exemption certificate or questions regarding this notification, please submit your certificate and/or questions via e-mail to the following address: salestax_appr_us_grp@oracle.com.

Sincerely,

Oracle Sales Tax
